ANNUAL REPORT TO MEMBERSHIP ON COMMISSION ON ACCREDITATION

SUMMARY OF WORK OF THE COMMISSION ON ACCREDITATION FOR THE PAST FISCAL YEAR

Summarization shows three major areas of activity: Accrediting Actions, Development of licy, and Cooperative Work with the National Commission on Accrediting and the Regional Acditing bodies. The Commission has held three meetings. Standing subcommittees include the view committees for the four specialized programs, and the Committee on Specializations. veral ad hoc subcommittees are preparing materials and recommendations on policy and a num- r of subcommittees from the various fields of practice are preparing materials related to th plementation of the plan to discontinue approval of specialized programs in June 1959.

This year the Commission took favorable action with regard to the following programs: 1) gers University, Graduate School of Social Work, was accredited as a two-year school; 2) lphi College, University of Oklahoma, Our Lady of the Lake College, and West Virginia Uni- rsity received reaffirmation of accredited status; 3) the medical social work programs were roved at the University of Kansas and Louisiana State University; 4) the psychiatric social k programs were approved at Florida State University, State University of Iowa, Ohio State versity, and University of Utah; 5) the school social work program was approved at the Uni- rsity of Southern California; and 6) the social group work program was approved at New York versity. The Commission participated also in four all-university reviews with regional acditing bodies.

DEVELOPMENTS ON MATTERS OF POLICY

A new section of the Manual of Accrediting Standards on "Complaint Procedures" has been eloped and adopted. Revisions have been adopted on the procedure on reevaluation of newly redited schools and evaluation of applications. The new document and the revisions have n mailed to all Manual holders.

Guiding statements which have been developed this year and made available are: "A Study Factors Associated with Size of Faculty in Schools of Social Work" (published in Social Work cation, June 1957), an "Interpretive Statement on Paid Field Work" and a "Guide to Schools the Preparation of Material for Reevaluation of Newly Accredited Schools."

The Commission is currently revising procedural sections of the Manual pertaining to "Obtives," and "Qualifications of Deans and Directors", is elaborating the Curriculum statement tion and is clarifying the standard with respect to the two-year time requirement of the edtional program. Several of these items will be discussed at the meeting of the Division of duate Schools in January. In addition, a section on "Procedure for Withdrawal of Accreditan" is being developed.

Guides on the development of Branch Programs, on Work-Study Programs, and for basic liry holdings for schools of social work are in preparation and it is anticipated these will completed during this next year.

The Board and Council of Delegates adopted the changed policy with respect to approval of cialized programs in social work education. It is anticipated that approval of special proms will be discontinued in June 1959. Both the policy and the plan for its implementation e published in Social Work Education (August 1956).

Specialization in Social Work Education,[1] by Ruth Smalley gives a summary of the backund leading to the changed policy and identifies the practical problems to be faced in imenting the plan. A summary and progress report were prepared in March 1957 for the NASW d is available to all its members. The plan for implementation of the policy provides for aboration of the Curriculum statement section in the Manual, for a systematic program of riodic reviews for all schools once during each 10-year period and for a regular on-going sultation service to schools once in each 5-year period. Provision is made for continuing contribution of the fields of practice to curriculum content and development. Currently, tional agencies and sections of NASW, through appropriate committees, are preparing statents for their respective fields of practice for the use of the Council in developing currilum materials. The nature and content of the descriptive statements now being prepared by se groups is as follows:

1. Indication of the services and/or agencies which, in the group's opinion, constitute the given field of practice, and the rationale for such inclusions.

2. Indication of the role and function of social work in providing the services available through agencies in the given field of practice.

3. Indication of the particular content in terms of knowledge, skills and attitudes identified with this field of practice which, in the group's opinion, is basic for all social workers.

4. Indication, in addition, of the content in terms of knowledge, skills and attitudes essential to competence for professionally qualified social workers entering this field of practice.

uring the next year the Council will give attention to developing a plan for informing the ield with respect to educational resources in the processes and the fields of practice repre-ented in the field instruction programs of the various schools.

There are questions and practical problems facing agencies, merit systems, money-granting roups as well as schools of social work in the implementation of the new policy which require urther joint thinking and discussion. An open meeting for such discussion was held at the Na-ional Conference of Social Work in May 1956, and at the meeting of the Division of Graduate chools in January 1957. There will also be a progress report at the Council's Annual Program eeting in January 1958.

A chapter on "Accrediting in Social Work Education" was prepared for a volume on Accredi-tation of Higher Education, Institutions and Programs to be issued by the U.S. Office of Educa-ion. The volume, under the editorship of Lloyd E. Blauch, Assistant Commissioner of Higher ducation has four parts: Nature and Evolution of Accreditation; Accreditation by State and egional Agencies; Accreditation of Education for the Professions; and Trends, Problems and Fu-ure Outlook. Review of the manuscript indicates the book will be a useful addition to accre-itation literature.

RELATIONSHIPS WITH NATIONAL AND REGIONAL ACCREDITING ASSOCIATIONS

Two representatives from the Commission participated in June 1957 in a two-day national orkshop conference sponsored by the National Commission on Accrediting. Topics for discus-ion included the "Major Purposes of Accrediting," "Major Problems in Accrediting, Today" and "The Future Place of Accrediting." This conference was most productive in that it afforded an pportunity for representatives of all accrediting bodies to identify major questions and to ssess progress. One such question is, of course, the nature of qualitative standards and how hese may be used effectively. During the year the Council participated with other accredit-ing bodies in supplying information to the National Commission on Accrediting with respect to: urpose, procedures, services, and Manual standards and questionnaires used by the Commission n Accreditation of the Council on Social Work Education. On the basis of the information sup-plied, the National Commission has compiled a Manual of Information about Accrediting Agencies which is most useful. An evaluative Study of Standards, Manuals and Questionnaires presented t the June Conference promises to be helpful in further examination of the purpose and nature f qualitative standards.

Working relationships have been developed with the following regional accrediting bodies: Middle States Association, Western College Association, Northwest Association, and North Cen-tral. The method of working differs according to the regional association involved. Prelimi-ary understandings have been reached with the Southern Association and contact established with representatives of the New England Association.

Experience with the regional accrediting bodies through participation in all-university eriodic reviews is mutually beneficial and fruitful. The Commission looks forward to maximum evelopment of coordinated activity with all regional accrediting bodies. - M. S.

A STUDY OF FIELD INSTRUCTION FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS: Interest of the profession in knowl-edge related to education for international students led to the preparation of this publica-tion by a subcommittee of the Committee on International Social Welfare Education of the Coun-cil on Social Work Education. It contains information re academic status of these students, their previous social work education and experience, educational objectives, and preparation for professional study in the United States. Current programs and practices in field instruc-tion for this group of students were analyzed with a dual purpose: to identify problems in offering such instruction and the various methods through which schools have attempted to solve these problems; and to formulate concepts and principles which may serve as guides to schools and agencies in educational planning for international students. Points up problems and issues for further inquiry. Price: 85¢

Awards are available for university lecturing and post-doctoral-level research. To insure consideration applications must be postmarked no later than October 1, 1957.

The Vermont Children's Aid Society
72 Hungerford Terrace, Burlington, Vermont

This is a new program. One scholarship will be available for 1957-58 for either first or second year, depending upon the applicant chosen. Approximately $1,500 is assigned. The applicant need not be a Vermonter. Applicant is committed to give as many years of service in Vermont as he has received years of training from a VCAS Scholarship.

State of Ohio, Department of Mental Hygiene
State Office Building, Columbus 16, Ohio - Attention: Mrs. Esther Hauptli, Director of Social Services

Twenty-five to thirty traineeships, for both first and second year study, awarded on a basis of need and professional promise, with a concentration in psychiatric social work, at $200.00 per month plus tuition are available.

Edward John Noble Foundation
300 Park Avenue, New York, New York

This foundation will make grants in the amount of $2,000 per year to selected graduates who wish to take advanced studies. The individual grant will continue for the period required for the graduate education. The ultimate goal as to number of grants to be made annually is 200. In the initial stage the grants will be made to men only and upon recommendation of college officials who have had an opportunity to observe the special capacities of exceptional students. The particular aim of the grants is to develop persons with an aptitude for leadership.

The Children's Aid Society
150 East 46th Street, New York, 17, New York

Two fellowships for either first or second year students have been set up by the Children's Aid Society for study in an accredited graduate school of social work. The fellowships carry a commitment to work in the agency for two years following graduation. The fellowships pay full tuition, registration fee and $165 a month for expenses during the school session. The total amount given will be between $2,300 and $2,400. In addition, students selected for fellowships will be given first consideration for summer positions available with the agency.
